

JURY STILL BALLOTING IN HAWAII

Report Polyglot Jurors Still Stand 10 to Two for Acquittal of Four

DARROW CONFIDENT

Guards Posted As Threats Are Heard Today

HONOLULU, T. H., April 29.—Guards surrounding the ancient 'Hall of the Chiefs,' the scene of the Fortescue-Massie "honor slaying" trial, were redoubled today and the jury room was searched for infernal machines and secret wiring.

As the polyglot jury weighing the evidence in the case entered its third day of deadlock deliberation, threatening letters were received by Prosecutor John C. Kelley and Judge Charles S. Davis.

A thorough search failed to reveal any bombs but police refused to relax their vigilance as both Kelley and Judge Davis have been forewarned of possible violence.

NERVES WRACKED

Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, co-defendants in the trial accused of the second degree murder of Joseph Kahahawai, remained in seclusion at their hotel, their nerves wracked by the long wait.

The case was placed in the jury's hands Wednesday afternoon at 4:24 p. m., Honolulu time. Unverified rumors placed the vote still at 10 to 2 for acquittal.

A flurry of excitement was caused by the police search of the jury rooms. Every nook and cranny was combed in vain. New guards were placed directly below the juryroom, which is on the second floor of the "Hall of the Chiefs" and police were posted under the balcony opening off from the scene of the deliberations.

HONOLULU CALM

Honolulu itself remained calm, with no sign of racial disorders. Police cars loaded with tear gas bombs, shotguns, and sub-machine guns in charge of two dusky uniformed officers remained on duty under the personal charge of William Hoppal, assistant police chief.

Police Chief Charles Weber said he wanted to take no chances with a demonstration in case a verdict is returned.

The delay in reaching a verdict has plainly upset the defendants. Mrs. Fortescue's eyes are swollen and red, as if from crying, and she has been unable to sleep or eat. The face of the aristocratic mainland society woman was more strained and haggard looking than ever.

Lieut. Massie, who shouldered the blame for shooting the man whom he said admitted an attack on his wife, is nervous.

Chief Defense Counsel Clarence Darrow, and Mrs. Thalia Massie, the central figure of the tragedy, have tried their best to spread cheer during the dragging hours.

Prosecutor Kelley's words discounting reports that an acquittal was favored by the jury served to intensify the gloom.

"It is just as likely to be the other way for a conviction," he said.

One report was that 22 ballots have been taken already.

Judge Davis' statement that he intended to hold the jury "for a reasonable length of time because this is an important case" was interpreted by court attaches to mean that dismissal, in case of a hopeless deadlock, will not come before tonight or Saturday.

SENFF ACQUITTED

Robert Senff, 25, former marshal of Kingston, was acquitted on the charge of robbing the Yagle and Hassenpflug stores in that village. A jury in Ross county common pleas court refused to find him guilty after deliberating one hour and 15 minutes.

F. N. F. Redfern of Adelphi, defended Mr. Senff.

Senff was arrested on the night of Feb. 20 by Edgar Hassenpflug, Harry Raub and Clarence Francis, who were hiding trying to catch a person who had been stealing money from the store. No money was taken the night Senff was arrested. He claimed he found the rear door through which he entered standing open and had entered to make an investigation in his line of duties.

FOUR YOUTHS ARE KILLED

Wooster Scene of Fatal Crash; Father of One Prepares Bodies For Burial.

WOOSTER, O., April 29.—A grieving father today prepared the body of his 15-year-old son and three of the youth's companions for funeral and burial services.

The four boys, all in their teens, were almost instantly killed last night when their automobile was struck by the speeding east-bound Broadway limited, crack Pennsylvania flyer.

The accident, which took place at a street crossing a block from where nine Burbank, O., high school basketball players were killed in a train-bus crash three years ago, was believed to have occurred when the attention of the four youths was distracted by a passing west bound freight train.

The youths were: John Morgan, 16, driver of the car; Richard Van Wiman, 16; Clark Harris, 15, and Walter Campbell, Jr., 15, all of Shreve. The bodies were taken to the funeral parlors of Paul Morgan, father of John.

S. K. Ringler, crossing watchman, said he tried to wave the boys down, but they apparently mistook his gestures as a warning for the freight train and drove their car on the tracks directly in the path of the Pennsylvania flyer. Traveling at a speed of 60 miles an hour, the limited hurled the automobile against the signal light standard at the crossing, killing all four of the youths almost instantly.

DETROIT GANGSTER DEFINITELY LINKED IN LINDBERGH MYSTERY

Harry Fleischer, Missing Since Kidnaping, Asked to Contact With 'Main Mug' Through Prominent New York Attorney Over Radio Thursday

NEW YORK, April 29.—Dramatic injection of Harry Fleischer, of Detroit's Purple gang, into the very heart of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping mystery today gave heightened tenseness to the search for the abductors.

An amazing message was broadcast last night to the gangster sought ever since the infant was stolen, asking him to "contact immediately" with the "main mug."

Harry A. Utterhart, an attorney, was named as an intermediary through whom communication could be made.

SENT OVER AIR

Left at the broadcast station by a stranger, the odd message was sent out after consultation by radio officials with the attorney.

"Fleischer will be listening in at 11 o'clock sharp tonight," the unidentified man had said.

Such a powerful range did the broadcast have it could be picked up throughout the United States, in Canada, and at sea. Fleischer has frequently been mentioned as being seen with the stolen Lindbergh baby in Canada or reported with it in a boat off shore of the eastern coast.

The broadcasted message read:

"To Harry Fleischer:

"Dear Harry: Contact me immediately through my attorney, Harry A. Utterhart, 36 W. 44th street. Do it through third party. No danger of a tip-off.

"I am the party who was the main mug of the Ohio joint where you and Big Mike grifted. Remember the souper you and the Turk?"

There was no signature.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., April 29.—Three negroes convicted of murders today paid with their lives in the electric chair here but not until one had fought his guards two hours.

NEGRO FACING CHECK CHARGE

William Dalton, Colored, Held Under $500 Bond; Chillicothe Wants Him, Too.

"Rubber" checks were rebounding at William Dalton, colored, from all angles Friday following his arrest on a charge of issuing the paper with no money in the bank.

He was arrested this week on complaint of O. E. Peterson, local used car dealer, who charged that Dalton gave him a bad check for $30. Dalton was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond when he pleaded not guilty and waived examination before Squire E. C. France. He was unable to furnish bond.

Dalton gives his home as three cities, Circleville, Chillicothe or Columbus, he cares not which. But from present indications his home after a short while will be neither of the three named with the first two letters of his new residence being O. P.

As soon as it was learned he was being held here Dalton was made the target for at least five "retainers" from Chillicothe where that man and probably more had check charges await him. His all checks in the latter city have all been of the $2, $3, and $5 variety. The May grand jury, convening Monday, will study his case.

FAMILY FOOD GUIDE TO LOW-COST BALANCED DIET

Every meal—Milk for children, bread for all.
Every day—Cereal in porridge or pudding.

CHILD HEALTH DEPENDS ON PROPER FOOD

"That each child may have the essential food elements each day's diet in 1932." This is one of the five principal items in the general purpose of May Day as proclaimed by the President and in accordance with the Children's Chart proclaimed by the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection.

The responsibility for the children's food, the Bureau of Home Economics emphasizes, falls upon the community as well as upon the parents. Wherever there is a shortage of food for children, the community is responsible for providing each child, not merely with food enough, but with "the essential food elements." Lack of food, or a wrong diet, is more damaging to the child than to the adult because the child is growing and his food, while serving his present needs, must also build for the future.

Milk of course is the most important item in the diet of the child. But instead of merely the milk and cream which in many families used to be the young child's diet, a variety of foods is recommended nowadays, even for the baby. Milk, cereals, tomato or orange juice, other vegetables and fruits, eggs, and some meat—begin early, nutritionists say, to give him all these things making sure, of course, that they are suitably prepared. Give them to him at first as fruit juices, or finely chopped or mashed vegetables, or scrambled meat. Little by little, let him have coarser and more solid food until, by the age of 2 he is having the same kind of food as the rest of the family, though in different proportions.

Give the child plenty of milk. Nutritionists have watched the growth of different groups of children who were all on the same diet except that some had more milk than others, or some had milk while others had not. In every case the children who had most milk outgrew the others in weight and height. If the child does not drink enough milk, give it to him cooked with his mush or oatmeal, with his vegetables or other food.

Milk and cod-liver oil or outdoor sunshine are particularly important to children as protection against rickets, a disease of the bones, or rather a failure of the bones to develop properly. Rickets resulting in stunted growth, or crooked legs, misshapen chest, or other deformities, is one of the sure signs of undernourishment. It is the result of a lack of calcium and phosphorus for bone-building (furnished in the milk) and of vitamin D (furnished in cod-liver oil and produced by outdoor sunshine), which helps the child's body to use the calcium contained in his food.

RECIPE
Bear Stew
2 cups dried beans
Water
1-2 pound salt pork.
Pepper.
Salt to taste (depending on saltiness of pork).
Chopped onions, celery, or green pepper, if desired.
Soak the beans overnight in cold water to cover. In the morning add

How the present United States marble champion knuckles down at the marble ring. This is John Jeffries of Greenville, Ky., winner of the 1931 national marble tournament finals at Ocean City N. J.

3 cups of water, the salt pork, and seasonings. Let simmer for an hour or until the beans are tender.
If more water is needed it should be hot when added. The beans may be cooked without previous soaking but twice as long will be required. If cooked in a covered vessel, slightly less time is required and the stew will have a stronger bean flavor.

Steak Smothered with Onions and Gravy

1-2 cup flour.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
Pepper.
1-2 pound lean beef about 1 inch thick.
2 tablespoons melted suet
2 or more cups sliced onions
3 cups hot water.
Sift the flour, salt, and pepper and beat thoroughly into the steak with a meat pounder. The beating makes the meat more tender, and the flour absorbs the juice. Seal the meat in the hot fat in a heavy skillet, on both sides, add the onion and water. Place a lid on the cooking utensil and simmer about 1 hour, or until the meat is so tender it can be cut with a fork. If the gravy becomes too thick add more liquid from time to time. There should be plenty of rich gravy.

Chopped Cabbage Sandwiches
Chop the cabbage fine, mix with a little creamed butter, and use as a spread between slices of bread. Small square sandwiches (and ordinary sandwiches quartered) are most easily handled by young children.

Creamy Rice with Apricots
1-2 cup rice
1 cup boiling water
1-2 cups milk
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-2 cup sugar.
2 cups chopped fresh fruit or dried fruit soaked and cooked.
Cook the rice over direct heat in the cup of boiling water. When the water has been almost absorbed put the rice in a double boiler, add the milk, salt, and sugar. Cover and cook until the rice is tender. Mix the rice and fruit and when chilled serve with top milk.

Aged Italian Arranged Plans for Own Death

PARMA, Italy—Giuseppe Parra, eighty-eight, feeling himself near death, dressed in his best, and visited the priest, begging him to give him the last sacraments, as he felt his end was near. Surprised at the apparently healthy man, the priest heard his confession and gave him communion.

When Parra had finished, he visited the undertaker, requested him to make his measure for a coffin that would shortly be required, "as I am about to leave this world." Then he returned home, greeting all his friends and acquaintances whom he met on the way and telling them he was leaving them soon.

The old man went to bed early. He was found dead in bed the next morning.

Volva announced, "I am living entirely off of nuts," and no one in Zion City took offense.

CONGRESS ATTACKS ECONOMY EFFORTS

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The congressional movement was unopposed in both branches of Congress today.

The House riotously whittled down the savings proposed in the $300,000,000 economy program, the Senate was the scene of a hot-ditch fight to reverse its policy of cutting House appropriations by 10 per cent.

Caught between the fire of tax-cut demands for a slash in the $1,000,000,000 budget and strong opposition from many groups, members hurled charges at each other with scant regard for congressional courtesy.

WORKERS ARE HIT

The net result of two night and day sessions of the House was to save savings of $25,700,000 chiefly at the expense of government workers. A total of $64,000,000 had been stricken from the original $300,000,000 bill.

The Senate was slated to vote on application of the 10 per cent cut to the commerce, labor, state and justice departments supply bill. More than 80,000 government workers, it is estimated, will lose their posts if the Senate continues its policy.

While Senator Johnson (R) of California was attacking the Senate's policy "a fetish of economy, without rhyme or reason," Rep. Cresser (D) of Ohio quoted economists in telling the House that the economy movement "is the product of brains of fools."

Senator McKellar (D) of Tennessee, author of the Senate 10 per cent plan, said he would produce a letter showing that Secretary of Commerce Lamont urged a business acquaintance to protest against any reduction in the commerce department bill. Senator Jones (R) of Washington hinted that cabinet officers may be violating the law in attempting to influence legislation.

OUR SALARIES

Economies effected in the House included salary reductions, 25 per cent cut in mileage allowance of Congress, reduction in subsistence and travel allowance of employees, retirement of super-annuated employees, denying extra pay for overtime, requiring married women with husbands in government to be discharged before others.

The House in a turbulent night session voted down, 88 to 40, an amendment of Rep. Mouser (R) of Ohio prohibiting members of Congress from putting relatives who do no work on the pay-roll.

"I know of a distinguished member who has his mother-in-law on the pay-roll," he said. "There are members who have persons on the pay-roll who look

Testifying in Stock Probe

Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York is shown (standing) as he testified before the Senate Committee investigating operations on the stock market. The Congressman, backed by a "trunkful of evidence," made sensational charges that publicity campaigns were staged to artificially boost stocks. La Guardia also produced promoter's checks, said to have been cashed by financial writers who received them for writing optimistic opinions as to the future of certain stocks.

after political affairs back home."

Earlier the House had shouted down proposals to cut salaries of members of Congress 25 per cent.

Members of the House economy committee struck back as the House bowed over its leadership in attacking the bill.

"What are you going to do?" shouted Rep. McDuffie (D) of Alabama, chairman, at one time. "Are you going to tell the country you won't economize even though it does not impair the efficiency of the government?"

Although the House defeated President Hoover's furlough plan of reducing the federal pay-roll and introducing the principle of the five-day week, Republicans plan later to force a roll call on it.

In the Senate, Senator Cope-land (D) of New York told members that he held his nose as he voted to sustain the 10 per cent reduction policy on supply bills.

troop guard was established around the entire park. Everyone in the park was searched.

W. S. Hibbard, an American park-keeper, was arrested by the Japanese for allegedly attempting to shield a panic-stricken Chinese in his home.

After representations by American Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham, Hibbard was released, but on order immediately was effected under which all the Chinese in the park were arrested.

In addition, a Russian park-keeper and five Koreans were arrested. It was one of these Koreans who was reported to have confessed.

More than 100 Japanese school children were standing next to the platform when the bombing occurred, but none of them were believed to have been hurt in the explosion. Several of the spectators received bruises in the panic that followed.

AMERICAN AIDS

The first man to aid Shigemitsu was Colonel Walter F. Drysdale, an American military attaché, who was standing nearby at the time. Unhurt himself, he rushed to the aid of the minister, who appeared to be the most severely hurt.

Samuel Chang, a representative of the Chinese foreign ministry, called upon the Japanese legation in the afternoon to present the official condolences of his government.

Although diplomatic circles believed the bombing was entirely a Korean affair, it was generally conceded the incident would have grave repercussions affecting the entire Sino-Japanese controversy.

The bombing fired anew the intense feeling between Chinese and Japanese, and the crowds in the streets threatened violence whenever the two nationalities met.

"THAT LITTLE GAME" --- The Gummer-Up

One hundred letters addressed to you personally

Think of the advertisements in this paper as so many letters addressed to you, personally. That's what they're intended to be, and, actually, that's what they are. This newspaper is, in effect, a mail-bag which brings you news of events and news of the best merchandise at the fairest prices.

You don't throw away letters unread. You don't read three or four letters carefully and skim though the rest. Treat the "merchandise letters" in this newspaper the same way. Read them all. Read them carefully. One single item will often repay you for the time it has taken to read them all.

Many good housekeepers have formed the habit of reading their newspaper with a pencil and paper, ready to jot down the articles they wish to look at when they start out on their shopping tour. Try this method. It saves time, and saves money, and provides you with the pick of the day's merchandise.

Every advertisement has a message all its own.

MONOTONY OF OHIO PRIMARY IS BROKEN

COLUMBUS, April 29.—The spell of boredom that hung over Ohio's primary campaign for several weeks has been broken.

A man who ought to know predicts now that one million votes, a new high record, will be cast when candidates are nominated at the polls on May 10.

The principal reason for the interest in the election, says the sage, is that the annoying habit of former political practitioners to neglect to mention what they were talking about in their campaign speeches has been discarded.

George E. Neffner, veteran election chief in the secretary of state's office, credits the 1932 crop of political candidates with speaking out without fear.

Although there has been a general belief that the state was immensely uninterested in the whole thing, unexpected aggressiveness and militancy have stirred up the race, Neffner believes.

The gubernatorial, senatorial and congressman-at-large battles are principally responsible for the new interest.

The Thursday fight between secretary of state Clarence J. Brown, David S. Ingalls and former Governor Myers Y. Cooper for the Republican nomination for governor has brought some plain speaking.

Brown has attacked the reign of Maurice Maschke and his Cleveland Republican machine, leaving no doubt that he is blaming Maschke for Ingalls' entry in the gubernatorial race.

This follows intimations made earlier that Ingalls in the envy of the White House. Ingalls himself said the matter of becoming a candidate here was never discussed with administration leaders.

Adroit mention is made of Ingalls' millionaire backer, especially among those who consider a million much too much, and there are sly references about Ingalls' Ohio legislative record, which is said to be nothing startling.

The Ingalls camp however, has replied. It is pointed out by Ingalls, with the air of one reading a great state paper, that the use of a political machine of state-paid employees to get votes is perilous to the republic.

Brown's name has not been mentioned, nor is it necessary, because the possibilities of a secretary of state setting up a personal political machine have been discussed in breathless awe and fear by non-secretaries of state for many years.

IS STRONG LINEUP
The Brown-Ingalls-Cooper lineup is probably the strongest that has appeared in one side of the gubernatorial fence in Ohio. In 1928, when the total vote was 971,163, the race was between Cooper and James T. Begg, with Martin L. Davey appearing against a field of several Democrats.

Now that the Anti-Saloon league has jumped on Attorney General Gilbert Bettman with both feet, some dignified mud-slinging is expected to result, and in view of opinions already mildly stated by Bettman, it is expected he will have some things to say which won't be misunderstood.

Bettman has already indicated he shares the Crusaders' admiration for the league.

The big field of would-be congressmen-at-large will bring out many votes. Prof. Gordon Hayes has a great many followers among Ohio State university. Former Director of Agriculture Charles V. Truax is well known. This additional phase of the campaign will help, possibly, to swell the total to the million expected by Neffner.

Raspberry Costs Youth in England Fine of $2

Whitstable, Kent, England.—That rather regrettable form of abuse known in America as "the raspberry," and in England as "the rahso," is liable to a fine of $2 here.

A youth named Sidney Hogbin was fined that amount for an offense, which was officially described as "disorderly conduct," although the policeman said he gave another man "the raspberry."

Hogbin pleaded that the man had previously made an objectionable remark to him and that this was the only way of getting back.

The police chief said that he had received numerous complaints about these "rahsoes," and he had brought the case to try and stop the practice.

IMPROVEMENT OF FINANCIAL CONDITION IN U. S. DISCLOSED

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Continued improvement in financial conditions took place in March and the first half of April, although business and industry still was declining, according to the federal reserve board's summary.

In other quarters there were indications of a substantial acceleration of loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corp. which announced an additional borrowing of $250,000,000 from the treasury. The corporation now has available for loans $435,000,000 at the treasury in addition to about $315,000,000 already paid out.

LOANS APPROVED
Approval of loans to banks, railroads and others have amounted to considerably more than has been paid by the treasury. Some large railroads loans probably will be announced within the next few days. These should have a stimulating effect.

Until final reports are in today the trend of money in circulation for the past week cannot be determined. An upward tendency was feared early in the week because of the failure of a large Boston bank.

There were large withdrawals of currency by other banks to guard against possible runs. However, it developed there was little undermining of confidence in other Boston institutions so that most of the funds withdrawn were returned to the reserve banks. Failures also occurred in the Pacific Northwest, but the effect of the situation was experienced during the week before when currency in circulation increased $2,000,000.

There have been more bank failures during April than the record low of 45 in March, but no crisis developed and the month will be better than any other except March since the real banking difficulties developed.

INDEBTEDNESS LOW
Member bank indebtedness to the reserve banks showed a considerable reduction from early March to April 20, while the member bank reserve balances were higher, both favorable factors. Industrial activity declined from 70 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in February to 68 percent in March, contrary to the seasonal tendency. Factory employment and payrolls were lower. There have been substantial in working forces in the steel, automobile, machinery, furniture, woolen and silk industries. Clothing and shoe factories gained.

Gold Standard
The idea of gold as a standard grew up imperceptibly in Europe. The early Venetian bankers drew bills secured by gold and the bankers of Antwerp later did likewise. These practices may be regarded as the forerunners of an established gold standard involving a gold reserve against paper.

Salmon in the Sea
The sea salmon is a little aquatic creature in the water where its loose flapping skin make it difficult to keep it from the seaward among the makes its home.

OPPOSITION SEEN TO 2 APPOINTEES

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Further opposition to the appointment of Judges Kenneth Mackintosh and James H. Wilkerson to the U. S. circuit court of appeals was placed before the senate judiciary committee today in a memorandum signed by 27 lawyers, economists and university professors. The men were recently nominated by President Hoover.

The protesters included Frank P. Walsh, Henry T. Hunt, Amos Pinchot, Arthur Garfield Hays Morris Hillquit, Alexander Fleisher and Carle Whitehead.

Mackintosh was attacked for "commending the lynchers of an industrial unionist," in connection with the Centralia, Wash., Armistice Day riot. Wilkerson was criticized for "issuing a blanket injunction in the railroad shop crafts strike of 1922 at the request of his political sponsor, Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty."

The protest also noted that Wilkerson had "awarded extravagant fees in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul receiver-ship."

The protest outlined in the memorandum have been laid before the senate committee in previous complaints by other organizations.

The political bee isn't a distinct species, but a variety of the humbug family.

Ace of Swindlers

THE weird death of Alfred Lowenstein a few years ago left in its wake a tangle of financial intrigue and political involvement but hardly prepared the world for the fantastic E. Phillips Oppenheim tale which came to life in the career of the late Ivar Kreuger. Death of the Swedish match king by his own hand bared a trail of shrewd finances, forgery on the grand scale, colossal bribery, blackmail, political wirepulling and international intrigue. While playing with millions Kreuger preferred to remain an international mystery. Now the public knows he was not a swindler, but a man who was not a swindler. His tactics go by the name of imposture. But worked long enough for him to mulch hundreds of millions from the investing public. Kreuger's financial transactions had many ramifications and were far-reaching. The investigation, which has only just begun, has already involved others. At how many others will the finger of guilt point? Now that Kreuger's duplicity and crimes have been found out his victims wonder at their credulity and doubt, perhaps out of pride, that any man or a half dozen men could have perpetrated such a colossal fraud and concealed it for so long. It is hard to find so many Americans made easy marks by a foreign swindler but it will be harder if it develops that he was aided and abetted by American financiers.

Nature's Farm Relief

NATURE seems to have finally got about solving the wheat problem after these years of man's bungling efforts. Lack of winter moisture in the Southwest is largely responsible for present crop conditions which indicate a 1932 harvest of winter wheat 42 per cent below last year's. A small part of this estimated decline is due to reduced acreage. Wheat growers in the Southwest may suffer rather than benefit, but agriculture as a whole will profit and through it business in general. With higher prices almost certain all growers may profit from the short crop. The nation as a whole is interested in the April report of crop conditions because it promises the elimination of the troublesome wheat surplus. Unless exceptionally good wheat weather follows the American crop will only meet domestic demands, leaving the farm board's surplus without home competition in foreign markets. Just that would take a heavy load off Uncle Sam's mind and pocket-book. Though they welcome any solution of the farm problem, the farmers' friends in Washington will not relish the idea of old Doc. Nature getting the credit. Again his honey remedies promise a cure after all political panaceas and expensive operations have failed. But the politicians were and are mainly interested in getting votes.

A Bad Precedent

SECRETARY of the Treasury Mills was properly touched by the patriotism of the Philadelphia man who offered to lend the government free of interest in the present crisis the $2000 he has saved from the insurance on his only son, who was killed in the war, and the treasury head's words of praise were more than deserved. At a time when virtually everybody is complaining about the burden of government, such an offer is inspiring. And yet if all taxpayers were moved by the same emotions as the patriot from the Quaker City what a saturnalia of spending Washington would launch upon. A few months of such patriotic giving and lending would leave nary a nickel for the public, for one that ravenous maw in Washington gets the taste of easy money it devours all in sight. If the American people have sensed it was not by being miserly towards the government. If anything they have been too generous, too easy. Governments are only as extravagant and spendthrift as their taxpayers are apathetic. Nor will government economy come by pouring more tax dollars into the lap of congress to be lavished upon constituents. Demanding good stewardship is as much a part of patriotism as coming to the government's rescue when it plunges beyond its depth in the waters of waste and extravagance.

PROVINCIAL WAR ON RATS

PROVINCIAL R. I. Roads Island has launched a campaign against rats but there will be no rat power in the lead. On the first day of the campaign, agents of the three farm bureaus in the state secured about 1,000 orders for rat poison-treated rat bait with residents of cities and towns interested in the drive.

"THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON
COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER I

THE voice of the dying woman was faint and dry like the faint rustle of an autumn leaf. All of the others except Mary, in grievous hush, had been excluded from the small bedroom at the request of Mrs. Kennedy herself. "Mary—do you remember what I always told you about—"

"Yes, Mamma. Only you mustn't tire yourself out worrying. The doctor's orders were for you just to rest all you can, right now."

Mary Kennedy sat on the side of the bed, her two warmly vital palms clasping the thin, work-worn hand of her mother.

"You always was the dearest of the lot to me, child—" The words were but faint whisperings and the young girl had to bend her head to catch them. "I couldn't bear to die if I thought you would have to endure the same life I've had to live. Promise me you won't—"

Slowly the eyes closed and her head moved slightly to one side. For an instant Mary thought her mother had dropped asleep, as indeed she had . . . forever.

A giant hand, charged with some terrific electricity clutched and squeezed Mary Kennedy's heart until she was stiff and numb through-out her whole young body. It was the end of a humble, inconspicuous tragedy. Just for a minute, before she called the others, Mary sat there remembering with acute intensity the bitter plaint of her mother's last years. From constant repetition it had assumed the authority of a creed. Just by closing her eyes, even now, she could hear her mother repeating the passionate advice of a frustrated life—the grim legacy of the vanquished.

"Don't you ever marry yourself into poverty and drudgery, child." Her mother's voice, usually so tired, had always become charged with fierce energy when she talked thus secretly to Mary.

"Love is beautiful, but if you marry a shiftless man it will make your life a hell on earth. You'll be his slave instead of his wife—and it ain't worth it, child. Your youth and beauty will be gone before you know it. You'll be looking at life from behind a stack of dirty dishes. Don't tell me poverty is honorable—poverty is a wild animal that will claw the soul out of your body. Don't give your life to a shiftless man because he'll use you for a doormat all your days. It's just as easy to love a rich man as a poor man, and only fools and liars say different."

Why ever since she could remember Mary Kennedy had been hearing the same thing from her mother—but now she'd never hear it again!

With her face dead white, Mary Kennedy walked into the stuffy parlor of the Brooklyn flat that was her home and told the others that death had arrived. Only then did grief openly assail her and, with the rest, she wept. Even in anguish, she was beautiful, small, round-limbed, piquant of face. Deep blue eyes and gold hair . . . smooth, fragrant skin . . .

It was the end of the home. Her whole life, within two short weeks, had released itself from the old groove. Her father had welcomed the offer of a room in the apartment of Mary's sister, Kathleen. Jack Osborne, Kathleen's husband, had pointed out that the three-year-old twins, both girls, would occupy a lot of the old man's attention and keep him from grieving. Mary's father was an outside man with a big insurance company, and such portion of his meagre salary that would go for his board and room with Jack and Kathleen would come in handy for the young couple. Kathleen, like her mother, had married poor. Jack was employed by an electrical firm and devoted his evenings to tinkering and putting with radios. Already Kathleen's eyes—she was still young—had begun to dim. They had neither servant nor car and, burdened with the twins, her once supple body had started to take on a raaky looseness. By the purchase of a davenport (on a dignified system of a deferred credit) it would have been possible to establish Mary in the radio-strewn room.

"Of course you'll always be welcome in my house, sister," Kathleen had said, "and you can keep your clothes in my closet. I know it will be kind of crowded with the children and all, but it would mean keeping the family together."

ing and putting with radios. Already Kathleen's eyes—she was still young—had begun to dim. They had neither servant nor car and, burdened with the twins, her once supple body had started to take on a raaky looseness. By the purchase of a davenport (on a dignified system of a deferred credit) it would have been possible to establish Mary in the radio-strewn room.

"Of course you'll always be welcome in my house, sister," Kathleen had said, "and you can keep your clothes in my closet. I know it will be kind of crowded with the children and all, but it would mean keeping the family together."

"You always was the dearest of the lot to me, child."

There was a weary goodness about Kathleen that set up a tingle in Mary's heart. Poor Kathleen! The biggest thrill she could look forward to was a Saturday night visit to a crowded movie house. Jack Osborne was kind enough to her but this crowded little house was his limit. Mary remembered him in his courtship days, a slim youth with natty clothes and a Panama hat. He had taken Kathleen on Sunday trips up the Hudson and once they had gone with a crowd of young people to spend the week-end at Lake George. But it was all gone now, that expectant gaiety on Kathleen's face and his. Oh, perhaps they weren't less happy than any other poor young married couple, but—

"It's awfully sweet of you to want me to live here with you, Kathleen, but I'm not going to impose on you," Mary told her sister definitely. "I'm going to get a room over on the Manhattan side closer to my job. But, of course, we'll see lots of each other."

The truth was that Mary Kennedy had no job at all. During her absence from the office throughout her mother's last illness, another stenographer had taken permanent possession of her desk. What she did have was a few nice clothes, a hundred dollars in a savings bank and now that the shock was wearing away, a lifting sensation in her heart. For the first time in her life she was on her own—she was free!

On West Eighty-sixth Street she found a tiny cubicle of a room for eight dollars a week. The future held no immediate economic terror. She was a highly competent stenographer and therefore always sure of employment in a city where stenographic competency is a miracle. No, she was not worried about a job, but she was a little worried—about life.

What she liked best to do in these first few days of her freedom was to enjoy her new sense of privacy. There was a feeling that some strangely pleasant form of existence was about to dawn upon her. It was nice, for instance, to sit in Central Park afternoons and luxuriate in the dreezes of youth. She saw great tea-faced hotels and apartment houses rising like cathedrals to the sky. She had long, unhurried hours filled with the subtle thrill of facing the world unafraid.

In the back part of her mind she knew this could last only a few days. For the first time in her life she was having a real vacation.

One thing that Mary learned in Central Park was to cultivate a cold, malevolent stare that was sufficiently tinged with contempt to drive off the males who sauntered hopefully past her bench. Her mood was not romantic; besides, she had an innate pride that would never permit her to be "picked up."

A more than middle-aged man, who scarcely seemed to notice her, dropped down on the bench. Mary did not deign to notice him, but a corner of her eye gathered that he wore a stylish gray felt hat and carried a cane.

He lit a long cigar and again the tail of her eye discerned more about him. Obviously, he was not trying to flirt with her—not in the usual manner, anyway. His whole preoccupation was with the cigar; his face was stern and hard, with a stony mouth. That was one attractive thing about him—it was plain that he was perfectly sure of himself in everything he did. Mary knew immediately that he was a definite man, that he was not squeamish about things. His ego radiated faintly from his person and carried with it a cool thrust of power. A man like this, she found, herself speculating, would never be in doubt about anything.

Before she realized it, she was talking to him. "A policeman had strolled by swinging his club; he touched his cap respectfully and spoke to the man sitting on the bench beside Mary."

"Good afternoon, Mr. Landers," Landers nodded to him; he did not smile but his eyes were amiable. He said to Mary:

"Well, I reckon that proves I'm respectable and it won't harm you any if we get to talking." His eyes were gray, like flint; there was nothing of youth in his colorless face. His long body had a bony strength. Mary decided he interested her, but did not attract her. "Why do you want to talk to me?" she asked him, untruffed.

"Mainly because you're a pretty girl, I suppose. You wanted a straightforward answer."

"How do you know I want to talk to you?"

He smiled, for the first time, with a touch of condescension. "Well, a lot of people think I'm worth talking to. A lot of important people, too. Sometimes my conversation is too money. Did you think I was just a common masher?"

"No."

They gazed at each other, warily yet frankly.

"Come Out o' That!"

Adults Can Now Get Rid of Tonsils Without Operation

Removal of These Glands Is Not Recommended Unless They Are Actually Diseased; But Electrical Treatment That Does Not Interrupt Work May Help

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

INFECTED and enlarged tonsils are injurious to the health. If actually diseased they should be removed, as they may be responsible for many serious ailments.

Normally the tonsil is about the size and shape of an almond. In tonsillitis, an inflammation of the tonsil, it becomes swollen, enlarged and painful. The throat is very sore, swallowing is difficult and there is a high fever.

If you have ever suffered from tonsillitis you can appreciate how sick that disease can make you. The attack subsides, but usually recurs unless the tonsils are removed.

Other glandular material similar in structure to the tonsil is found in the throat. This is the pharyngeal tonsil, and when it becomes diseased and enlarged the child has what we call adenoids. The eating is difficult and the hearing is impaired. This trouble is rarely if ever, seen in adults, but it is quite common in children. Usually abnormalities of the tonsils and adenoids are associated, and in case of operation both are removed unless they are infected as well as enlarged. In health these glands help the body ward off disease, but if infected they are a possible cause of chronic rheumatism, kidney disease, heart disease and other infections within the body. The dangers associated with disease of the tonsils are great, and the condition therefore should not be treated lightly.

Many adults suffer from diseased tonsils. They have been advised to have them removed but neglect to do so. Too little emphasis is placed upon the significance of diseased tonsils in adults and their need of attention.

It is now possible to have tonsils removed without a cutting operation. The procedure I refer to is used only for the removal of diseased tonsils in adults. It is not advised for children. The treatment consists of applications to the diseased tonsils of a special electrical current until the tonsils are destroyed.

There are many advantages in this form of treatment. The patient can continue work without interruption. The tonsils are removed without shock, pain or danger of hemorrhage and this treatment will appeal to many who have feared operation. It is necessary for your physician to decide which treatment is best for you. But please remember that diseased tonsils create a serious condition.

The Daily Horoscope

Friday, April 29, 1932

Many unusual and surprising developments are indicated today. Violence and destruction are shown in several quarters. The radical element, those who are opposed to an orderly change in the social order, are likely to take drastic measures at a time like this. Good citizens should realize that this is a day when over-active imaginations let off their steam.

Everywhere the emphasis is laid on self-assertion, nobody but the thinking few will be disposed to listen to reason. The tendency is towards turning things upside down, making sudden moves, taking rash action. A day to exercise much control, to avoid accidents and injury. Not a time to experiment with chemicals or explosives. Operations should be avoided, especially on the head, stomach and kidneys.

Those born between the 8th and 13th of April may expect surprises today. Extreme caution is necessary for these folks to avoid serious injuries.

The middle of the afternoon is the critical period. The strongest destructive tendency of the whole year comes into play at that time. Suicide and crime are more than usual under these indications. Likewise there is a decided tendency towards mental and nervous diseases. This is a day to keep cool-headed, take no risks and make light of petty irritations.

Children whose birthday this is, are both mathematical and artistic. They are successful in their studies at school and it is not hard for them to concentrate their little minds and retain what they learn. This type of child is never called a "dunce" of the class. On account of their love for competition, they will not allow themselves to get behind in their studies. Furthermore, they have a strong desire to avoid criticism.

They do not seek notoriety but only crave attention from those who attract them.

Among the prominent men who were born on this date, we find Arthur Wellesley, Duke of Wellington, British soldier, 1769; William B. Hearst, American newspaper magnate, 1863; Lorado Taft, American sculptor, 1890; Alexander D. Noyes, 1838.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

by Edson R. Waite
Shawnee, Okla.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—The advertising columns of newspapers are breathing with bargains.

No city is immune from hard knocks. If they have a community spirit, well developed, hard knocks just spur them on to greater achievements.

Lately a lot of politicians and editors of newspapers in the big cities have been beating their breasts violently, roaring and spreading the word that able-bodied veterans of the World War are receiving pensions. They are greatly mistaken. The Government does not pay compensation or pensions to any veteran of the World War unless he is disabled.

Speed maniacs should be taught that the time to be careful is before accidents—not after.

Every citizen should prove his loyalty to his home city by service rendered.

The chap who carries around a sour face and never smiles is hurting no one but his own selfish self.

A whole lot of business men just love to be skinned by fake advertising schemes. They fall for every faker that comes along. In fact, some of them crowd each other to see who can get stung first.

Tourist trade can enable a city to field more revenue. It is also one of the best means of introducing the city itself to outsiders. It helps any possible misunderstanding that exists between one place and another.

The wise business man knows that the "magic key" to the city and rural trade is through the advertising pages of local newspapers.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT

No. 11519

Notice is hereby given that Meeker Terwilliger has been duly appointed and qualified as executor of the estate of John Shonebarger, late of Pickaway County, Ohio, deceased.

Dated this 5th day of April A. D. 1932.

E. A. BROWN Judge of the Probate Court, Pickaway County, Ohio.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29

Stressing the dollar and cents value of increased traffic safety, as well as the returns which such safety brings to the individual in happiness and freedom from anxiety and strain, L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, today announced the annual street and highway safety campaign open to younger members of all local subordinate granges. The campaign takes the form of an essay contest, the subject of the essay being: "Why the Grange Should Foster Street and Highway Safety."

A total of 132 cash prizes and medals is being offered to state winners while the best paper from each state will be entered in competition for one of the six national prizes. First national prize winner will go to the annual Grange Sessions at Winston-Salem, N. C., in November, with all expenses paid, while the remaining five national prize winners will receive checks ranging from $50 to $5. All prizes are provided by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

SAFETY ON STREETS

"Greater safety on streets and highways means money to the bank to every member of the grange as well as all others in this country," Mr. Taber said in announcing the essay contest. "It means less hospital bills, less doctor bills, less repair bills, reduced insurance rates, less damage to produce and property, and many other savings to every person, whether motorist or pedestrian."

"Returns more than material include individual happiness, freedom from pain and injury with consequent loss of earning power, freedom from mental anxiety and worry on the part of parents, and the power to go through life strong and healthy, able to enjoy the marvels of nature and man's inventive genius."

The contest in local granges is in charge of the lecturer and is open to all members of the grange who have not passed the age of 18 years by August 1, 1932, closing date. Essays must be confined to 800 words or less. The essay submitted in each grange will be sent to the state master under whom a committee will select the four prize winning state papers. First prize consists of a check for $5 and a silver medal, while second, third, and fourth prizes are bronze medals.

To decide the national winners, a special committee appointed by the national master of the grange will review the best essay from each state. Winner of first national prize will receive the trip to the annual convention, and second to sixth winners will receive checks for $50, $20, $15, $10 and $5 respectively, in addition to their first state prizes.

Cooperating with the National Grange is the Highway Education Board which, for the past ten years, has been conducting similar campaigns in the schools throughout the country.

Gold deposits recently found in this ledge near Parsons, W. Va., presumably running through three ravines more than a half-mile apart, are said to be the richest ever found in the East. The precious metal assays $156.60 per ton, and active steps to operate on a commercial scale are already under way. The original discovery was made by Coyton Phillips within the boundaries of the Monongahela National Forest. The rocks shown in the picture are gold-bearing.

Stars Of Track At Penn Relays

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Approximately 1300 petals from the flower of America's young men had begun swirling into action this morning in the two-day relay meet under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania. The teams were entered, and the affair an interesting event.

The dramatic show started at 10 a.m. with the staging of five of the ten decathlon events.

The schedule called for their conclusion at noon after which was to come a recess until 2 p.m. when preliminary school boys, high school boys, prep school boys, and collegians proceeded to run to the limit of their speed and durability as that their aim matter would be gloriously glorified.

TO AWARD PLAQUES

In addition to glory the winning teams are to be rewarded with bronze plaques, while the individuals will be presented with watered medals and other trophies.

The entire program consisted of 31 events, 38 to be run off today and the balance on Saturday.

However some of the events are to be run off in heats and this means about 100 contests.

Some of the stars here are Ted Lind, the great Yale sophomore hurdler; Jack Keller, Ohio State hurdler; Bill O'Connor, Columbia high jumper; Clarence Munn, giant Minnesota shotputter; G. D. Williams, Hampton, javelin thrower; Joe McCluskey of Fordham and Gene Beatty, the Michigan normal 400-meter hurdler. They will defend carnival championships.

admitted the mysterious note involved the Lindbergh case.

"I am acting in this case merely as a liaison agent," he said. "I was asked by an attorney friend, who in turn is acting with full authority from all concerned, for use of my name."

He admitted the people for whom he acted were both prepared and able to pay for the baby's return.

Then Utterhart asked a question of the reporters interviewing him. "Have any of you men heard of a story that Al Capone bought the baby from the original kidnappers for $25,000?" He queried.

Informed such rumors had been circulated about the imprisoned Chicago lord of racketeers, he refused to answer a counter-question as to what led him to make the inquiry.

Fleischer and Abe Wagner, New York gangster, were long sought by Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, for questioning concerning the kidnapping. The purple gangster disappeared from Toledo, Ohio, suddenly a few hours after the Lindbergh baby was abducted on March 1.

At Hopewell, N. J., Schwarzkopf professed ignorance of the broadcast or its significance.

About the time the broadcast was made, Colonel Henry Breckinridge, confidential adviser to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, conferred with Dr. John F. Condon, whose "Jafsis" advertisements led to payment of the $50,000 hoax ransom to the supposed kidnappers.

Both left the Bronx home of Dr. Condon last night, in an automobile and were reported to have set out on another attempt to establish contact with the abductors.

An "official statement" was issued by Salvatore Spitalo, Irving Bliz and Morris Rosner that had withdrawn from the case.

Spitalo and Bliz, underworld characters, were commissioned by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to act as their negotiators with the abductors. Rosner was known to have acted for Lindbergh, but his part in the negotiations always remained a mystery.
